

Certificate in Educational Administration and Supervision (092)

Advance your educational career to new heights

The field of education is constantly evolving, and with that change comes the need for skilled administrators and supervisors who can effectively lead schools and educational institutions. Designed for those who already hold a master's degree in education or a related field, this certificate allows you to further your career and move into educational leadership. When you earn your 092 certification, you can make a difference at the school-wide level and beyond. UB's flexible hybrid schedule allows you to continue having a positive impact in your classroom while you advance your education.

Be the change your district needs

At UB, our 092 certification program prepares you to be the change that your school district needs. Through your coursework, you'll learn to implement research-based strategies to enhance student learning across your school. You'll develop the skills you need to promote rigorous instruction, all while fostering a school environment that is inclusive, culturally sensitive, and conducive to the success of a diverse student population.

University of Bridgeport School of Education

UB is home to one of the first schools of education in Connecticut. UB's rich history and well-regarded teacher preparation programs are ideal for teachers and administrators beginning or advancing their careers. When you earn your 092 certification at UB, you can take additional courses to earn your Sixth-Year Diploma of Advanced Studies (DAS) in Educational Administration and Supervision.
